

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In the case where a line for connecting the communication section mounted on the navigation terminal with the center communication section provided in the information center is established and the starting point information and the destination information are sent from the navigation terminal to the information center, the current position of a vehicle, which is measured after the completion of the connection of the line, is sent to the information center as the starting point information. According to the thus sent information, a drive route is calculated in the information center.